

HARVARD'S
NEW LEADERAlbert L. Lowell Inducted Into Office To-day

LARGE CROWD PRESENT

Exercises Started at 10:30 O'clock with Procession to University Hall and
Will End with Fireworks
To-night.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 6.—Nearly 10,000 people saw Albert Lawrence Lowell made president of Harvard university to-day, to succeed Charles W. Eliot, resigned. The exercises began at Cambridge at 10:30 o'clock, with a procession from Phillips Brooks house to University hall, before which the inauguration took place. Former Governor John E. Long in a few words formally inducted President Lowell, who, almost in tears, made a brief response. Then after a chorus by the alumni, he began his inaugural address.

Pres. Lowell's Address.

President Lowell spoke on "The Needs of the Modern College," and he spoke in part as follows:

"We are justified in believing that the college of the future has a great work to do for the American people. The task before us is to frame a system which, without sacrificing individual variation too much, or neglecting the pursuit of different scholarly interests, shall produce an intellectual and social cohesion, at least among large groups of students and points of contact among them all. What I have to say upon the subject here is intended mainly for the conditions we are called upon to face at Harvard."

"It is worth our while to consider the nature of an ideal college as an integral part of our university. It would contemplate the highest development of the individual student—which involves the best equipment of the graduate; the proper connection of the college with the professional schools; and it would adjust the relation of the students to one another."

"In speaking of the equipment of the graduate, we are not inclined to lay too much stress upon knowledge alone. Taken by itself, it is not the most vital part of education. In its farthest address to the alumni of Dartmouth President Tucker remarked that 'the college is in the educational system to represent the spirit of amateur scholarship. College students are amateurs, not professionals.' Or, as President Hadley is fond of putting it: 'The ideal college education seems to me to be the one where a student learns things that he is not going to use in after life, by methods that he is going to use. The former element gives the breadth, the latter element gives the training.' (Am. Rep., 1908, p. 22.)"

"The graduate ought to be so equipped that he can grasp effectively any problem with which his duties or his interest may impel him to deal. I speak of the equipment because equipment ought to be a strong foundation for education. It ought to be such that he is capable of turning his mind effectively to direct preparation for his life work. If every college graduate ought to be equipped to enter any professional school, as the student of a German gymnasium is qualified to study under any of the faculties of the university, then it would seem that the professional schools ought to be so organized that they are adapted to receive him."

"Now that we have established graduate schools of engineering and business administration, we must examine this question carefully in the immediate future. If the college courses are strictly technical, the requirement of a small number of elective in relation to the professional school, is not inconsistent with a liberal education. For a man destined to reach the top of his profession, a broad education and a firm grasp of some subject lying outside of his vocation is a vast advantage."

"The last of the aspects under which I proposed to consider the college is that of the relation of undergraduates to one another. To what extent do undergraduates talk over things intellectual, especially matters brought before them by their courses? The students in the law school talk law interminably. Much must no doubt be ascribed to the skill of the faculty, but there is also the vital fact that all these young men are tilling the same field. Now no sensible man would propose to-day to set up a fixed curriculum in order that all undergraduates might be joint tenants of the same scholastic property; but the intellectual estrangement need not be as wide as it is. Might there not be more points of intellectual contact among the undergraduates, and might not considerable numbers of them have much in common?"

"A discussion of the ideal college training from these three different aspects would appear to lead to the conclusion that the best type of liberal education in our complex modern world aims at producing men who know a little of everything and something well."

"No one will deny that in our colleges high scholarship is little admired now either by the undergraduates or the public. We do not make our students enjoy the sense of power that flows from mastery of a difficult subject, and on a higher plane we do not make them feel the conquest of scholarly exploration."

"The university touches the community at many points, and ought to serve the public through ever increasing channels. But all its activities are more or less connected with, and most of them are based upon, the college. It is these that character ought to be shaped, that aspirations ought to be formed, that citizens ought to be trained, and scholarly tastes implanted. If the mass of undergraduates could be brought to respect, may, to admire, intellectual achievement on the part of their comrades, in all the measure that they do athletic victories, if these among them of natural ability could be led to put forth their strength on the objects which the college is supposed to represent; the professional schools would find their tasks lightened, and their success enhanced. A greater solidarity in college, more earnestness of purpose and intellectual enthusiasm would mean much for our nation."

After another chorus, degrees were conferred on British Ambassador James Bryce, as a delegate from Oxford university, on Elihu Thompson, the great electrician, and on the presidents and delegates from nearly every leading American and European university. The benediction was given by Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts, and the chiming of "Fair Harvard," by the bells in Christ church, near the college yard, concluded the exercises.

The Harvard alumni gave a luncheon in Memorial hall this afternoon and the women entertained at Radcliffe college. The students will give a great pyrotechnic display in the stadium to-night.

LIKELY TO BE HAYES.

As Census Supervisor of Vermont—Appointment Soon.

Before leaving Washington last fall the Vermont delegation in Congress met to consider the question as to who should be supervisor of the census for Vermont. While no recommendation was made, it was urged upon Senator Dillingham and Congressman Plumley that in view of the fact that outside of the college, there were but two important federal positions held in the first district, as against seven in the second district, this appointment should go to the west side.

Upon the return of Senator Dillingham to the United States, the director of the census urging prompt action, Senator Page who was absent from the state, communicated with his colleagues, only to find that it would not be possible to have a meeting of the delegation in Vermont for some weeks. Senator Dillingham wired Senator Page, conceding that the appointment should go to the first district. Thereupon the matter was taken up by wire by Senator Page and Congressman Plumley and Eastern arrangements were made. It may be said that, in all probability, Lynn M. Hayes of Essex Junction will be named.

NEW SCHEDULE UNPOPULAR.

Petition in Circulation to Have "Air Line" Stop at Wells River.

Wells River, Oct. 6.—Under the winter schedule of running the trains on the Boston & Maine railroad, which went into effect Monday, the Boston and Montreal day express, known as the "air line," does not stop here going north, an arrangement which is not at all relished by the traveling public.

Under the old arrangement the mail train from Springfield transferred all passengers going north of this place and the same arrangement was in force for mail and express.

The railroad people claim they had to make the new arrangement because transfer occasioned too much delay in the running time of the train and got more passengers than it could conveniently carry. The traveling public are circulating a petition between this place and White River Junction to ask the public service commission to have the "air line" stop here and resume the old transfer arrangements.

CAR STRUCK
CARRIAGEWoman Thrown From Latter and Made Unconscious

WAS TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Carriage Was Smashed to Pieces in Burlington Last Night—Motorman
Claims He Was Running Car
Slowly.

Burlington, Oct. 6.—A covered carriage, containing a woman and a man was run into last night about eleven o'clock by a South Union street car, on Shelburne road, a short distance this side of the Home for Destitute children. The woman, whose name was given as Miss Hall of Cherry street was knocked unconscious and taken to the Mary Fletcher hospital and the carriage was demolished. The horse and other occupants of the carriage were, however, not injured to any extent. The name of the man, who is said to be a traveling salesman, could not be learned last night as he refused to give it.

The car in charge of Motorman Daniel Kane, was proceeding at a slow rate when the horse, driven from the road leading to Red Rocks, crossed the track only a few feet in front of the car. The brakes were immediately set but this did not prevent the smash. The horse and most of the carriage was already over the track so that the rear wheel took the brunt of the blow. The occupants were thrown to the side of the track and the carriage carried along for a few feet. This threw the horse.

The girl was found to be apparently unconscious but the driver not injured seriously. Dr. Wilder was summoned and advised the removal of Miss Hall to the Mary Fletcher hospital. Upon examination, the doctor found no bones broken or bad wounds.

The male victim admitted that he saw the car approaching but thought he had ample time to cross the track before the car. He said that he owned the team and had been keeping it at Pappin's livery stable. This was after found to be a fact as he had called for the team there at 7:30. At the Mary Fletcher hospital last night the girl was reported to be in a comfortable condition.

ONE WOMAN APPLIES.
For Registration as Pharmacist—Eight Others Take Examinations.

Only one applicant took the state board of pharmacy examinations at Montpelier yesterday afternoon, when the state board met for its quarterly meeting. President J. G. Bellrose of Burlington, Secretary W. F. Davis of Barre, Treasurer W. R. Warner of Vergennes, W. L. Gokay of Bennington and W. F. Root of Brattleboro were in attendance. Of the nine candidates, one was a woman.

The questions which had been prepared proportionately by the entire board, were of the usual substance, as the talk of raising the requirements was not carried out. The candidates were allowed all the time they wished, the last one not leaving the room until 5 o'clock. It was intended to hold a meeting of the board after the tests were over, but owing to the lateness of the hour nothing was done until the evening, when the members met in the upper parlors of the Pavilion for their quarterly meeting.

The members were called to order shortly after 8 o'clock by President J. G. Bellrose of Burlington. The reports for the past three months were brought before the members and accepted, after which plans for the succeeding quarter were gone over in a general way. There was some talk of having a school of pharmacy connected with the university of Vermont, medical school, as with the present equipment of that institution only a few very slight additions would be needed. No action was taken on this matter, however, and if anything is done at all it will be at the next meeting which is the annual affair. The date set for this is the first Tuesday in January. The papers will be ready with the results of the tests in two weeks.

COUNTY COURT TRIAL.

F. G. Lamberton on the Stand in Lumber
Case To-day.

In Washington county court to-day was heard the testimony of F. G. Lamberton in the case of Mark Meave vs. Harry Daniels, an action to recover for logs which the plaintiff says he paid for and did not receive. Lamberton was employed by Daniels to get out the lumber and is, therefore, a very material witness. He was on the stand all day yesterday and again resumed this forenoon.

The divorce suit of Town vs. Town was heard by Judge Waterman yesterday afternoon. Mrs. E. A. Town, who seeks the divorce, told her story to the court. She was married to Town five years ago in Montpelier, her husband being a resident of Waterville, where they went to reside. She testified that from the first week of their married life they had trouble, her husband abusing her. They then separated, and Mrs. Town applied for a divorce. Afterwards her husband came to her and asked her to live with him again. She agreed, but at the end of three weeks, when he had abused her while he was intoxicated, she left him for good, going to Portland, Me.

While in Portland she was taken ill and applied to her husband for help and he answered by letter that he wouldn't help her. The woman's father also testified that Town had not acted right toward his wife.

Mrs. W. E. Sutherland of Waterbury visited friends in the city today.

TELEPHONE COMPANY
CUTS OUT TOLL CHARGEBut Threatens to Resume as Soon as the New Battery System is Installed.

As a result of the efforts of the Barre and Montpelier boards of trade, during which it became necessary to voice their grievances to the Vermont public service commission, the Vermont Telephone and Telegraph company has decided to waive its toll charge of five cents between Barre and Montpelier and to rebate all the excess charges since the first of July, when the change was made.

General Manager J. H. Gowdey of this district published the following letter to-day:

"To Customers of the Vermont Telephone and Telegraph Co., in Barre and Montpelier:

"The company has determined to suspend the operation of that portion of its new rate schedule which provides for a toll charge on calls between subscribers' stations in Barre and Montpelier until such time as it places the common battery system, so-called, in operation."

"In case your contract under the new schedule is for local service only, the intercity calls which are made from your telephone stations will be charged on your bill, but a credit of rebate of equal amount will be made until such time as the common battery system is put in operation in the exchange with which your station is connected, at which time your rebate will cease. The only exception is made in case of customers having one or two-party local service. These customers, as they are getting the service at a reduced rate, will continue to pay five cents each on intercity calls, unless they prefer to take full intercity service."

"Upon your October bill, which is herewith enclosed, you will find a credit for all intercity calls which have been billed to you since July 1, 1909."

"We shall continue to make the discount of 25c a month from exchange rates on bills paid before the 15th of the month in which they are rendered."

"J. H. Gowdey."

"General Manager."

This announcement following a conference held at Montpelier yesterday afternoon between the representatives of the company, the Barre board of trade, and Attorney General Sargent. A hearing was set for yesterday before the public service commission, but the case was not brought. As will be noted, the telephone company states that it will resume the toll charge when the new battery system is installed.

THINKS IT WAS ACCIDENTAL

And State's Attorney Gates Will Not Investigate West Berlin Shooting.

Having concluded that the shooting of Percy Mann at West Berlin last Saturday night was accidental, State's Attorney Gates says he will make no further investigation of the case. The shooting took place at the house of Edward Acranman, where Mann was visiting. The story which State's Attorney Gates was told when he investigated yesterday afternoon was that after a lengthy and somewhat hilarious visit Mann started to leave Acranman's house and Acranman started out with a revolver to shoot some rats which were after his chickens.

He had some difficulty with the revolver, and it was discharged, the bullet striking Mann in the left side and being deflected by a rib, so that it did not make a serious wound. It was claimed that Mann did not know he was shot until he reached home, when Dr. Hubbard of Northfield was called to attend him.

Mann and Acranman are employed at Davis Bros. store in West Berlin and are said to be the best of friends. Acranman is said to have been much grieved when he found that he had plugged his friend instead of a rat. Acranman was at work yesterday morning, but remained away from the shed in the afternoon.

WAS INJURED A WEEK AGO

Infuriated Animal Struck Him in Breast,
Knocking Him Down, and Then
Tossed Him Through Barbed Wire Fence.

East Calais, Oct. 6.—Charles Rublee, a well known resident of this section, died yesterday from injuries sustained last Wednesday when he was attacked by a bull. The attack took place at the place of Curtis Tibbets while Mr. Rublee, who is advanced in years, was leading the bull from the pasture. The animal suddenly attacked him, striking him in the chest and knocking him down and then tossing him through a barbed wire fence. Two ribs were broken, and Mr. Rublee's face was terribly lacerated where it had come in contact with the barbed wire. Had Mr. Rublee been a younger man, he might have survived the injuries; but as he was 76 years old he did not have the vitality to recover.
